

Arts Men Prepare Varied Programme For Annual Antics

Skits, Songs, Yells And Refreshments To Be Presented

BRIDESMAIDS REQUIRED

Official Uniform To Consist Of Old Trousers And No Ties

Friday night will witness the first of the Arts Undergrad activities of the season in the form of the 'Arts Antics.' The nature of the entertainment it was stated will take the form of skits, to be presented by each class in the Faculty. Admission is free.

It is understood that the first year will present a comedy, while the sophomores are rehearsing a drama. In an interview last evening the Daily Reporter was informed that "Bridesmaids and an interested crowd" were required to complete the cast of the Senior Production. The official uniform will consist of old trousers and no ties.

Dean Attends
The Secretary of the Arts Undergrad Society revealed last evening that Dean Johnson has accepted the invitation to attend the performance, while no definite word has yet been received from Sir Arthur and Dean MacKay.

The rest of the program will consist of free smokes, free eats and a rousing sing song and the visitors will have something to say.

While the idea of having each class present a skit is quite novel it is not entirely original to Arts Undergrad shows for last year the Class of Arts '33 presented a skit which was given a most favourable reception by the audience.

Program Varied
Other features of the evening will include piano playing by George Folle, cheer leading by Sprinkle and song (continued on page four)

Open Gathering At Philosophical Club

Philosophers Will Consider Value Of Belief In God Tonight

The Philosophical Society will consider the question "Is There a Philosophical Justification for a Belief in God?" at an open discussion of the club which will be held tonight in the Reading Room of Strathcona Hall. Arthur Minlon, President of the Society, will introduce the subject. It is interesting to note that at all these meetings an attempt is made to keep away from formal lectures. Someone opens the discussion after which every one present may join in. The executive of the Society hopes to put the subject so that such a discussion will be directed into the most interesting and fruitful channels. It also expressed the opinion that this subject ought to be of interest to anyone who attends.

This is the second meeting of the Society for this season. At the first a record number of people were in attendance. Those in charge hope that this will be the case tonight. All interested are cordially invited to attend.

Traveller To Talk

On Tuesday, November 7th, the Labour Club will hear Mr. Wilofsky a citizen of Montreal, speak on "My Two Years In Russia". Mr. Wilofsky has spent some time in Poland, Germany and France and claimed his stay in Europe by spending two years in Russia. Thus his address should contain some valuable, first-hand information.

Pathetic And Humorous Sides Of Charity Seen

HOW much is little? Many a busy student has asked himself this question on consulting some text-book. In vain! a general solution has never been found and a "little" still remains a purely relative unit, depending on a set of extremely variable conditions for its value. Even in terms of money the meaning changes—although around college it seems stabilized at about twenty-five cents. The Federated Charities Canvassers report the instabilities to be extreme in many of the cases which they have met with.

One gentle, old lady insisted quite charmingly last year that she could give very little, and when her interpretation materialized it was in the form of a ten dollar bill. This year she again donated "a very little,"—in the form of a cheque for twenty dollars.

Then there is another little story—a story of tragedy, and the irony of

Campaign's Third Day Nets Smaller Total—Law Leads

Season's First Jazz Tea Held Yesterday

YESTERDAY afternoon the first Jazz Tea of the season was held in the Cafeteria of the Union. A ten piece orchestra led by Harold Ayers, supplied some music for an audience of about thirty students. The staff of the Cafeteria supplied a special menu for the occasion. It is expected that several similar events will take place in the future.

Workshop Present Three Plays Soon

Players' Club Subsidiary Opens Season Tuesday

The Workshop Department of the Players' Club is again first among the season's dramatic activities. At 5.00 next Tuesday in the Central Y.M.C.A., three one-act plays will be presented. The first of these will be entitled "A Wedding" directed by Charlotte Bowman with M. Edgar, J. Smart and J. Crutchlow and G. Bourne, T. Montgomery, K. Wiele and A. K. Robertson forming the cast.

The second play of the group is entitled "Neverlasting." It is directed by Lawrence MacGregor, with Betty Weldon, and D. Cam and D. Kircher in the cast. The final play of the group, "The Monkey's Paw" is directed by Heward Stikeman, and the cast is made up of M. Douglas, C. Russell, D. Muller, R. Wakefield, and T. Piddington.

These plays cover a rather large field in the way of dramatic composition and it is hoped that the selection will be to the taste of all. Commencing with the light comedies of a "Wedding" and continuing to the weightier problems presented in "Neverlasting" the audience it is hoped will be in a fit mood to receive the thrill of W. W. Jacob's "The Monkey's Paw."

Aviation Ground School

Commencing November 15th, an Aviation Ground School will be held in the Engineering Building, under the guidance of Captain T. H. Finney. This class takes place every Wednesday at 7.45 p.m. For Engineering students this instruction will be free, but for others, the fee will be $5.00. For further information, apply to the secretary, Dept. of Extra-Mural Relations, McGill.

Students Visit Plants

More than 120 students of Chemistry from Ottawa and Montreal visited the Howard Smith Paper Mills, Ltd. and Courtnald's (Canada) Ltd. yesterday. The trip was under the auspices of the Society of Chemical Industry. Dr. J. B. Phillips and Dr. H. Hebert represented McGill as directors.

Co-Ed Music Club Welcomes Freshettes

The R.V.C. Music Club will hold its first meeting today at 4 o'clock in R.V.C. Common Room. Among the artists is Mr. Colin McMichael, a pupil of Louis Chabrier, who was heard over the air last winter. Professor J. H. A. Dubois, well-known to musical circles in Montreal, will also contribute to the afternoon's program while piano selections will be given by Miss Alice Goodman.

Freshettes are especially urged to attend as a first year representative must be chosen.

Refreshments will be served at the close of the meeting.

Remembrance Day

There will be no lectures on Remembrance Day! Saturday the eleventh of November.

T. H. MATTHEWS, Registrar.

To Visit Refineries

A trip to the Canadian Copper Refineries has been arranged to take place tomorrow. All students who intend to go on this trip are requested to hand their names in to Ray Borlight, Mining '34. Every one is to meet on the steps of the Chemistry Building at one o'clock.

R. V. C. Makes Greatest Aggregate Contribution To Date — $104

LAW continues to lead in the Federated Charities Campaign having increased their donations to 64.4% of their objective in the third day of campaigning while the R.V.C. now holds the distinction of having made the greatest aggregate contribution to date. Contributions yesterday amounted to $133.05 in comparison with a total collection of $175.10 the previous day.

This decrease in returns has seriously threatened the success of the campaign as it had been hoped receipts would increase daily, and as the total amount collected to date is only $370.73 it will be necessary that a large number of returns be received within the next few days in order that the McGill students objective of $2,000 may be within striking distance.

18.5 Already Collected

To date approximately 18.5% of the students' quota has been turned in. Unofficial returns of the campaign as a whole indicate that the sum of $267, 894 has been collected, or approximately 36% of the $743,000 objective. It will be noted, therefore, that although receipts to date are over $165 more than they were at the same time last year the increased needs of the Federated Charities in the carrying on of their work in Montreal are such that many more contributions must be made if McGill students are to bear their allocated share of the increased burden.

Contributions from Law, Commerce, the Graduate Nurses, Architecture, and R.V.C. have already reached a high figure, while Medicine, the Graduate School and Engineering report fair returns. Greatly increased contributions from Dentistry, the Library School, M.S.P.E., Theology and Arts will be necessary if their individual and the total objective is to be reached.

R.V.C. Has Highest Returns

R. V. C. made the highest returns of any division yesterday handing in $59.75 to increase their total contribution to $104.75 and their percentage to 29.1 thus strengthening their hold on fifth position. Law continued to hold first place though Commerce is right behind with contributions totalling 61.5% of their objective, while the School of Graduate Nurses now occupies third place having supplanted Architecture, the leaders of the first Class and group representatives are again urged to hand in their returns daily in order that their school or faculty will receive credit immediately and so that true comparisons may be made with last year's collections and with percentage collections outside the university.

McGill To Send 10 Delegates To Xmas Conference

Nationalism, Race, Unemployment, Subjects Under Discussion

A CANADIAN-AMERICAN student conference, under the auspices of the World's Student Christian Federation, is to be held at McMaster University, from December 29 to January 1. It has been announced by the S.C.M. The 100 students and leaders from both countries will go prepared by preliminary study carried on in the coming months to represent a dozen different countries where the problems of race, unemployment, and nationalism are especially important at the present time.

Out of the fifty delegates to be sent from eastern Canadian universities, McGill has been assigned a quota of eight students and two leaders. The conference will do a part of its work in three commissions, one of which, on "Unemployment and Christianity," will be led by Lloyd G. Reynolds, of the Department of Sociology, and Professor J. King Gordon, of the United Theological College. All interested in studying these questions may do so by giving their names in at Strathcona Hall.

Intellectual's Doubts On Religion Faced

Prof. R. B. Y. Scott Continues Forum Series For Moderns

"We can think of Jesus Christ Christ as the way to God, and God's way to us, and in this way we see him as divine," was the conclusion of Professor R. B. Y. Scott, in discussing the question "What can the modern student think about Jesus Christ?" in the second of his series of forums in Strathcona Hall yesterday afternoon, the next of which will be held next Wednesday at 4.30 p.m.

The historicity of Jesus as the fountain-head of the Christian religion is a fact of history, the evidence of which is as valid as that of the existence of Julius Caesar. Secondly he is an individual of a special kind, who can show us the way to God. His divinity is unlike the conception of that of Mars or Jupiter. God is revealed through him not in power or omniscience, but in love, mercy, truth, justice and so on, that is, in moral categories found in men.

NOTED NEGRO SPOKE

MAX YERGAN, who spoke yesterday on the Racial Problem of South Africa.

African Racial Problem Of Immediate Importance Today

Large Audience Heard Max Yergan Speak At Strathcona Hall

"THE RACIAL problem in South Africa is very real, and immediate," stated Max Yergan last night to a large audience in Strathcona Hall. The speaker is an American negro, and has spent fifteen years in South Africa. He was introduced by Malcolm Ransom, President of the Student Christian Movement.

No new forces exist to be applied to this problem, the speaker stated. It cannot be solved objectively. There are subtle biological influences entering into it that prevent an objective solution. The cause of this problem may be attributed to three lines of development which Africa has taken in the last two generations. These are political, economic, and the change of ownership of the country.

Considered Politics

Dealing with the first of these, Mr. Yergan indicated that the control of Africa lay in the hands of five European powers. These were not responsible to Africans. They were, only slightly responsible to the home European government. These powers dominate African politics. The African is excluded from the higher educational facilities imported by these governments. He has no share in their co-operative schemes. Thus the minority are in control.

Part Of Europe

To South Africa have come 1,500,000 Europeans. Overnight, figuratively speaking, they have changed this territory from Africa to a European annexation. Durban and Cape Town are modern cities in every aspect. In (continued on page four)

McNally Scheduled

Newman Club Arranges For Speaker Sunday

At the second Newman Club meeting of the year to be held on Sunday, November 5th, Dr. W. J. McNally, prominent Montreal physician and a member of the Medical faculty of McGill University will discuss as his topic "Co-operation." This address will be delivered at Congress Hall, Dorchester and St. Alexander St.

The Monthly Mass and Buffet

The monthly Mass and buffet breakfast will precede Dr. McNally's address, after which announcement will be made regarding the Informal Dance to be held Wednesday, November 27th. As an additional feature there will be a talk by an official of The Catholic Federated Charities, which will be appropriate in view of the fact that a canvass of McGill University will be taken soon.

All Catholic students attending McGill are invited to attend this monthly meeting, which will commence at 9.45 a.m.

Gunners Gathered

Saturday Trips Planned For Rifle Club

At a meeting of the Rifle Club yesterday, it was decided that Saturday afternoon outings would be held. These are in addition to the usual Sunday excursions to Point Aux Trembles. The main item of discussion was the inter-collegiate rifle meet which will be held in the near future. As usual, the Rifle Club will present a special prize to the competitor who makes the highest aggregate score, besides the usual prizes for the different events.

The meeting was held in the union Music Room. Mr. Mussen presided. G. A. Herring was unanimously elected as vice-president and team captain for the season. Particulars of Saturday's outing will be given in tomorrow's Daily.

Lecture Postponed

Elmer Rice, scheduled to lecture in Montreal November 4 has postponed his lecture until November 23, because of illness.

Monster Rooters' Parade Arranged For Coming Game

FEATURING the McGill-Queen's game on Saturday will be the most-elaborately planned student parade of the season.

In view of the fact that this is the last home game of the season the students are expected to turn out in large numbers to support the team. Upon the outcome of this game also hinge McGill's chances of placing anywhere in the Intercollegiate League, a fact which should make the game doubly interesting.

To add colour to the ceremonies connected with the game the McGill Band has been rehearsing for the past few days assiduously. In addition to that there will be a surprise skit put on during the half time period, which promises to provide a source of popular entertainment.

Ignorance Of Some Simple Facts Cause Of Prevalent Crisis

Sir Norman Angell Spoke On Post-War Conditions

DEMOCRACY IN CRISIS

British Political Tradition Slow To Change, States Author

THE world of today has gone wrong, due to the fact that public policies have not been directed in accordance with a few simple economic facts which people in general fail to understand. Such was the opinion expressed last night by Sir Norman Angell, world-famous author, who spoke at the Montreal High School on the subject, "British Political Tradition and the Post-War World". The depression today has been the direct result of this lack of knowledge of essential facts which could be taught to an intelligent youngster in an hour, he stated.

Changes Since War

Many things have happened since the War stated Sir Norman. In 1914 nations of the world fought to preserve free political institutions, but after the war an epidemic of dictatorships swept over Europe. The peoples that have escaped this wave are the British peoples, although vast economic and political changes have occurred among them. The main question is—what is the explanation of the prevalence of democracy in British and sea-coast countries? It cannot be explained racially or biologically. It must have a historical and cultural explanation.

American Democracy

The Americans got hold of a theory of democracy and wrote it into their constitution — it was that democracy (continued on page four)

Max Montor Recites Goethe's Selections

Dramatic Program Tonight At 8:30 In Moyse Hall

Selections from the writings of the German poet, Goethe, will be recited tonight in Moyse Hall by Max Montor before the Goethe Society of Montreal. Mr. Montor will give scenes from "Egmont," and also several well-known poems. The program will begin at 8.30, and not at eight o'clock, as previously stated.

Max Montor, an actor of great experience, is the most distinguished German dramatic recitor of the present day. It is considered an unusual experience to see him, seated in an arm-chair on the platform, speaking the words of the several different characters of a play, using only the inflections of his voice to convey the meaning of a scene to his audience. He speaks without rising, uses a minimum amount of gestures, and yet plays on the imagination of the listener, so as to keep him spell-bound to the last word.

Mr. Montor, born in Vienna, and educated at the Conservatorium of Drama there, began his career as an actor in Zurich, and held a number of engagements in Leipzig and Hamburg. He finally gave up his interests in active drama, and devoted himself to reciting. His incredible memory enables him to recite whole plays in English and German—the authors ranging from Shakespeare to modern writers such as Hauptmann, Sudermann and Ibsen.

The opportunity of hearing a first-class German recitor is rare. Even a beginner will have little difficulty in understanding the passages to be read tonight, so expressive is Mr. Montor's voice. Students and public are cordially invited.

Dr. Douglas Lectures On New Stars Today

The first meeting of the Royal Astronomical Society of Canada is to be held tonight, at 8.30 in the MacDonald Physics Building. Dr. A. Vibert Douglas will lecture on the topic of New Stars or "Novae."

A new star having recently appeared, the subject ought to be a particularly interesting one. Dr. Douglas will explain how the real meaning of this occurrence is revealed by spectrum analysis.

Every one interested in this phase of Astrophysics is cordially invited to attend.

Medical Examinations

Medical examinations will be conducted hereafter on Tuesdays and Thursdays, at 3484 University St., from 12.30 to 1.30 p.m. until further notice.

Gazette Visit

Daily Reporters who have not yet visited the Gazette are urged to come down today and check off their names on the lists posted in the office. They are further reminded that they may not change their names from one date to another.

Springs Of Alarm Clock Will Be Released Soon

The Alarm Clock didn't go off! Consteration ran high in campus quarters when students discovered they hadn't been awakened in time to enjoy their early lectures in the anticipated manner.

They hadn't the ghost of a notion what could have happened. It took the Daily Reporter to unravel the mystery. No one but he would have hit upon the simple theory that the editors of the Alarm Clock had returned early in the morning from Hal-lowe'en revelries and shut off the Alarm, preferring not to be awakened.

Of course, no one had the same rich background of experience; nor did anyone have his reputation for veracity put into jeopardy.

Investigation showed his inference to be correct. He was met by a yawning editor who seemed to have forgotten all about the grave social implications of his act. Nothing was wrong with the mechanism of the

Two Lectures Given To Junior Institute

Poitras And Dineen Addressed Group Last Night

Two papers were read at the meeting of the Junior Institute last night, in the Hall of the Engineering Institute. The two speakers were Charles Poitras, Graduate of the Ecole Polytechnique, who spoke in French on "Steel," and Mr. Dineen '26 Graduate of McGill, whose paper was on "Town Planning."

Mr. Poitras traced out in detail the history of the steel structural forms from the very mining of the ore on. The mineral, oxide of iron, is heated in contact with carbon and calcium carbonate in the blast furnace, and is thereby reduced. In order to transform it into steel, it is treated in the open hearth furnace, after which it is recarbonated, and finally obtained as wrought iron. The rolling mills thin it out from large blocks into long straight bars, either square or round or flat. The transformation is done on the cold metal, and involves difficult problems.

Mr. Dineen then exposed the problems of town planning. Proper surveying is the basis, and a map including topographical, and transportation details is made from them. From this map the most advantageous division of the town into districts, location of plants, streets, parks, are devised. Then follow the division of the districts into blocks, and the division of blocks into lots. Lines of pipes, to provide for water and sewerage, hydrants, and a host of other commodities must be dealt with. When the plan has been approved of, the grounds are staked and the works started upon. A general discussion of the paper followed, after which the meeting was adjourned.

Alarms Of Alarm Clock

Will Be Released Soon

Alarm Clock itself. The springs tightly wound and ready to go off at the scheduled moment early next week. The reporter was told that if you put your name on the mailing list you have to get it in before the end of the week. Otherwise you won't be wakened until after the bell has rung.

The proof of the pudding lies in eating thereof, and so with the Alarm Clock. Materials are of a greater variety than ever before, treating with widely differing subjects as the National Recovery Administration, the grievance of a slighted poet, and the fate of Engineers in the future Social Order.

Despite its rather turbulent career last year Baby Ben has grown into Big Ben. The infant which began life with eight pages has now become a young magazine of twelve pages, and promises to ring more lustily than ever.

Vol. XXIII—Thurs., Nov. 2, 1933—No. 23

Sir Norman Angell

SPEAKING under the auspices of the National Council of Education last night, Sir Norman Angell expressed some remarkably timely opinions on present day world conditions. He claimed that the world of today had gone wrong because public policies had not been directed in accordance with a few simple economic facts which are commonly misunderstood.

He claimed that the War Debts and Reparations problems were typical examples of the lack of economic forethought. He said that we should strive to prevent economic evils, rather than striving to cure them, which is a much more difficult thing to do. In his opinion, only through proper teachings of these simple facts to the masses can democracy and the welfare of the world be saved.

He showed that the American democracy is prone to lay aside the important issues in the wave of political enterprise. The lowest citizen of the United States has his vote in the most important of financial and diplomatic affairs, which in the general case are incomprehensible to him.

This opinion of Sir Norman Angell is worthy of notice today. In no other time has the situation been so critical, where such important issues have to be met by the people at large. Though it may be said that the men at the helm of a country have the deciding opinion in matters of national import, nevertheless it is a fact that they can be too strongly influenced by the masses under them. As a result of this, though not of their own choice, they are forced to take steps which they might consider unwise. They cannot overrule the popular opinions about them, which often can be far from sound.

We who are studying these matters, or even gleaning a smattering of economic sense, can appreciate the situation. We can look back on the deliberations and decisions of statesmen of the past and can find considerable fault in them. But the past is not our only field of study, the world of today presents a wealth of material. We should keep an eye on the economics of the world around us, and if possible, take some part in preventing the unfortunate misconceptions which have marred the past.

Conference

THE modern student lives in a world which has to a singular degree lost its sense of direction. He sees about him a society scourged by recurrent plagues of unemployment, war, and racial conflict. In nations which call themselves Christian, social conditions exist which are the very negation of all ethical teaching. The most disturbing symptom of our time, however, is not that these problems exist, not even that so little is being done to meet them, but rather that our people have so small a sense of social responsibility, so little urge to constructive effort. We have been afflicted by a strange psychical malady, a passivity in which we while away our days, accepting social ills as mysterious acts of a hypothetical Providence. We have not the courage or the will to master the social mechanisms which we have created.

The existence of such a situation constitutes an especial challenge to the student group. We have enjoyed the leisure and the mental contacts which should stimulate creative effort. We are by training better fitted than the great majority of our contemporaries to assume the task of social leadership, of leading our country from stagnation and chaos to order and happiness. Our privileges have been great; our responsibility is also great. If we fail to fulfill our function of leadership, both in the intellectual and the practical realms of activity, the future of our people is indeed a black one.

At this point the student will probably interject, "But what can we do? Tell us in plain and concrete language". In this connection we note with interest a projected conference to be held in Hamilton during the Christmas vacation as announced in the news columns of the "Daily". It is reassuring to see that at least one hundred students from all parts of North America, will attempt to face the implications of the problems of unemployment, nationalism, and racial conflict. The object of the conference it seems, will be to determine the action which can and ought to be taken by students, both during and after their University days, toward the permanent solution of these problems.

The BOOK SHELF

It May Even Be An Epic

ANTHONY ADVERSE: by Hervey Allen. Farrar and Rinehart, $3.00. (1,200) pages.

IT WAS that quaint old, Leon Leperier, who once remarked in his stark phantasy, "The Psychosis of a Rose", that a long novel is like a debutante — hard to pick up but remarkably easy to lay down. Be that as it may, we can truthfully assert that there seem to be a good many people agog over Mr. Allen's weighty masterpiece. Hastily constructed tables throughout the country are groaning underneath it. Reading "Anthony Adverse" is the thing to do.

Is it a sign of the times? Not long ago emaciated novels were as popular as the emaciated figure. No volume was tolerated by the public at large that could not be read in a few hours. Perhaps this was due to the influence of Mr. Poe, who claimed that literary unit should be brief enough to permit reading at one sitting, in order that the effect might not be broken. But then, those whose taste led them only to slim books would not be likely to read Mr. Poe's literary criticism.

There have been some excellent long novels written in the past few years. Mr. Hugh Walpole is definitely in favor of them. But Mr. Walpole, of course, is definitely in favor of nearly everything. The trend, if there is one, is certainly a good one, and may readmit for popular consumption such works as "Henry Esmond", "Anna Karenina", and other novels that are great in quantity as well as in quality.

New, by the phrases "public at large" and "popular consumption", having got rid of all literary snobs, we may proceed to discuss "Anthony Adverse". It is unnecessary to present a summary of the work. Mr. Morgan Powell has already done that. All those who wish to be able to talk about the book without reading it are referred to the Montreal Star.

It is quite likely that Anthony Adverse has been more than once called a picaresque novel. It shall be called so once more — by me. It is a lusty, rough, healthy tale, fully as robust as Tom Jones, and — to the modern — easier reading. It smacks of a man who loves life, who knows people who love life. It has no sociological 'ax to grind if we except a few remarks upon slavery; it is not bitter, it is not polemical; it is simply a reverent to the prime function of a novel — the telling of a tale.

But not a mere tale of adventure, let me tell you. Libraries are flooded with adventure stories that are simply a series of hazards and escapes superimposed upon a few conventional types. There unity, if any, is the unity of event. But there is an organic unity in Anthony Adverse. And there is a certain life significance which the hero-rescue-heroine story never possesses.

Whence this life significance, say you? Well, Anthony is a man. Not only is he the son of God, he is also an animal. And he lives. This is the book's chief claim upon your attention — it shows a man living. Only good books do this.

It is well nigh impossible to attempt such a feat on a small scale. Mr. Allen does not make this attempt, as we have hinted before. He devoted several years to the task, and the result is a work huge in scope as in avoirdupois. Anthony Adverse, Esq., sees the world generously and exhaustively. And, wherever we are taken, we can seldom attain to that estimable Nirvana known as boredom. The little quirk here, the quip there, the amour here, and the debacle there, — they all interest us even if they do not enthrall us.

It would be impossible to read a book of this magnitude were there not humor in it. There is humor in it. It is sometimes of the American-rah-rah-hyperbole sort, but occasionally it is of more genuine calibre. Mr. Allen may not be subtle, but he is hearty; and in these days of quick lunches, minute steaks and Lewisian cynicism, heartiness — not of the Rotarian type — is often welcome.

We have above compared — and not unfavorably — Anthony Adverse to Tom Jones. This seems to suggest that the former is worthy of a shake-down in the doss-house of the great. Maybe so. Certainly it lacks a good deal of that stuff called greatness. Now and then it is tedious, but only now and then. Sometimes the high spirits are forced, but only sometimes. As a reconstruction of a previous age — early nineteenth — it is alive; and it tastes not of the dust from archaeological shelves. We can safely read it, if we can read it at all, for its vigor and breadth, and leave for our children (God bless 'em) the verdict as to its longevity.

Marginalia

MAMA STEIN and Papa Anderson are very proud of their little Ernest (vz. "The autobiography of Alice Toklas"). Scribner's have just published his latest collection of short stories, "Winner take nothing". Henry Seidel Canby who upholds all the virtues that are in need of being upheld somewhat regrettably states that even though Mr. Hemingway has the force of Kipling his lack of consideration for the "true" values robs him of first place.

Joseph Roth whose "Flight into Nothing" and "Hob" created a literary sensation a few years ago, both in Germany and abroad has entered the fall book list here with the translation of his last novel "Radetzky March". This deals with the history of a family in the Austro-Hungarian Empire, the members of which were civil servants and officers in the army which was led in peace and war to the tune of the famous general's march.

The ancient and reputedly hoary university of Oxford harbors within its traditional walls the person of such an arch-rebel as G. D. H. Cole in the guise of a teacher of economics. In collaboration with his wife, Margaret Cole he has written a guide book to the present European chaos. With no apologies to Mr. Shaw he calls this vade mecum "The Intelligent Man's Review of Europe Today", and who does not need at present a guide to the stormy continent.

Andre Maurois has been for some time now the chief interpreter of England to the French. The silences of Colonel Bramble, the soul of Ariel and the wit of Disraeli were revealed to the Latin mind by this biographer novelist and manufacturer of textiles. "The Edwardian Era", the period of 1900-1910, when "peace" was prepared the cinema began Brierley flew the channel Soho became London's Bohemia and Lily Langtry reigned, comes within the focus of M. Maurois' looking glass. On this continent the book is published by the D. Appleton-Century Co. New York.

In view of the fact that Virginia Woolf has just published the biography of Elizabeth Barrett Browning's spaniel "Flush" and it is being received with open arms by the critical brigade, a new and hitherto unexplored field has been opened by that daring pioneer. We hope to see in the near future biographies of Goethe's cat, Schopenhauer's cane, Amy Lowell's cigars and Walt Whitman's hat.

I mean (to make the obvious less so)
That those who sow in fall do such perforce
And not with the same hope in the doing
That the spring gives. We were not born to wait
Though the winter's ground betimes lies fallow.
In levity, all spring would mean no reaping,
But must there be an endless reaping?
Isn't there in the reaping something final?
It's then this growing is continued on
Summer after summer, from spring to autumn,
From winter to winter; it's when this growing
Is its own decay, like fungus on a birch-tree;
It's when a wood, once pathless, is walked through
Only to bring us back to the same spot
Of the very wood we walked through,
And where the grass we treaded down is up again
As though our footsteps had never made impression
And the orchard over the fence
With its own glory tries to shade the sun;
It's then, we say, and you are none the wiser,
That life is in the coming, not the going
And therefore it is some men are hopeless.

Wednesday 9 O'clock Recital

Madame Jeanne Soudelkine gave the first recital of the present season of the Wednesday 9 o'clocks, at the Ritz Carlton Hotel, last night. She is a dramatic soprano with a pleasing voice of fair range and considerable depth. Her best rendition was a difficult passage from Weber's Oberon — "Ozean! Du Ungeheuer", which she sang with power and dramatic emphasis. Glinka's "Doubt" was very suitably chosen for Madame Soudelkine's sense of the tragic, and the earthy peasant song of the slightly tipsy Russian woman had all the qualities of Russian folk song.

the chosen repertoire. More Russian songs of the vast treasure of the folklore of that country would have enhanced to a considerable degree the value of Madame Soudelkine's recital. Yet despite that her recital augurs well for the remainder of the season and for the program of the sponsors.

The Editor,
McGill Daily:

Dear Sir:—
There is a group of McGill students who meet periodically in congenial surroundings, to improve their knowledge of the German language and customs. Informal talks on topics of current interest, followed by a general discussion, alternate with the typically German Kommersabends, at which the singing of German songs is followed by dancing. To speak German is 'derigueur' at these gatherings; in order to let others benefit by their readiness, the experts bestow themselves among the novices, whose proficiency is inevitably increased by the use of their growing vocabulary.

It was suggested at the last meeting that a typically German name be adopted for the gathering (the French students formed in the 'Cercle Francais' a French one for theirs). The term 'Germania' was unanimously chosen. Herr Mueller Hickler, at the invitation of the club, gave a very informative talk on modern Germany.

We wish to stress the friendly spirit in which this invitation was extended, and was likewise accepted; the sincere and courteous defence made by the speaker for his country's policy, and the frank and pleasant discussion which followed. We invited Herr Mueller Hickler not because we either approve or disapprove of Hitlerism, but solely to discuss in an amicable way the present situation in Germany.
The main object was to hear good German spoken, and to attempt to speak it ourselves, hence a subject of paramount interest was chosen: to stimulate conversation; the club was fortunate in having a guest speaker who, by his training, experience, ability and a first hand knowledge of the situation was well fitted to express his views on the subject. It is a great

Attention Focused On Week-End Grid Contests

Cinder Meet With Soldiers Cancelled

OWING to the sudden death of Colonel Gardiner, one of the directors of R.M.C., the scheduled intercollegiate track meet between the Soldiers and the Redmen has been cancelled. A telegram to this effect was received by the Athletic Office yesterday. The meet was scheduled to be run off sometime last week, but inclement weather forced its postponement to this afternoon.

The cancellation of this track meet means more to the Soldiers than it does to the Redmen, as this is the only meet in which the R.M.C. track and field stars compete as a unit. The keen rivalry, however, will be carried over to next year's meeting which will be of double significance.

Junior Water Polo Squad Faces M.S.C. At Columbus Tank

Illness Of Squad Members Postpones Senior Tilt
SEEK INITIAL WIN

MCGILL'S junior water polo squad will attempt to break the jinx which has apparently been dogging their path throughout the last three city-league games, facing Montreal Swimming Club tonight at the Columbus Tank in what should prove a top-notch match. A senior-league Columbus-McGill contest, originally scheduled for tonight has been necessarily postponed due to illness of two of the squad members.

Faced with the somewhat dismal prospect of becoming permanent basement fixtures in the league standing, the junior Redmen will spare no efforts tonight in their endeavours to take the measure of the speedy M.S.C. aggregation. The latter team boasts an exceptionally fast forward line which will require some wary defense work on the part of the Red backs. Considering the air-tight defense provided by the Percy-Smythe combination during the league tilts to date, however, the Redmen have little cause to worry on this score.

Forwards Fast
The Red forward line can match speed with any junior team in the city league, and can be relied upon to force the play in tonight's contest. In every game that they have participated this season they have undoubtedly held the edge in swimming and passing tactics, and only weak shooting has handicapped the chances for a team win. Due to illness, Elliott, whose scoring efforts have been well to the fore in past matches, will unfortunately be missing. His position will be filled by Wilson. McLure will flank the latter on the forward line, while Pete Bourne will swim for the ball at centre. Silverstone completes the line-up at half position.

The match will commence at the usual hour at 8.30 and the junior squad members are requested to report on time.

R.V.C. Swimming Classes
Women students taking swimming will meet in Room 12, R.V.C., for their first hour. It is essential that everyone whose name appears on the swimming lists, attend this class.

Co-Eds Not In City Hoop Competitions

BASKETBALL, the most important sport in which R.V.C. takes part, has suffered a relapse this year, as far as Inter-City League competition goes. There will be no second team as the League is non-existent. This means that the Senior team would have had no one to practice against, so Miss Slack has devised a method to remedy the situation. The best teams in daily class competition, will play off at the end of the week and in this way a team will be picked to oppose the Seniors. If the time of playing does not coincide with a girl's athletic class, it will be counted just the same and she will not need to attend her regular class. M.S.P.E. will also take part in this competition. This means that there should be great enthusiasm in the daily classes this year, as competition should be lively amongst the many who would like to get their small "M's." These "M's" were given to players on the second team in former years.

Redmen Will Be At Full Strength For Queen's Tilt

Young Certain To Start — Whole Team Keyed To Fighting Pitch As Crucial Struggle Draws Near — Kick, Pass Plan Will Again Be Used — Young "Shag" Available For Almost Any Position.

FRANK SHAUGHNESSY'S senior football team is looking more and more like a real threat for intercollegiate football supremacy as the Queen's game approaches and not just a flash in the pan as many have regarded it. The return of the injured members of the squad and the generally fine condition of the team as a whole will enable Coach Shaughnessy to field twenty men who will be in the fight till the final whistle. Don Young is certain to start and Tom Richert will, in all probability, dress for the fray.

Large Attendance At Initial Meeting Of Fencing Club

Thirty Aspirants Greet Coach Raimondi — Old Guard Present

ANSWERING Coach Raimondi's call for fencers, an enthusiastic group of some thirty aspirants turned out at yesterday's meeting of the club. This is the largest number of recruits that has turned out for the club's initial meeting in years and it is hoped that the newcomers will turn out consistently. Regular meetings will be held in the fencing room at the M.H.S. on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays.

Of the old guard that turned in an appearance, Bert Wiggers was all ready for a strenuous session along with Van Reet, dependable swordsman who saw action last year. Perrault was also present. Fabbro and Moll turned out, but it is doubtful if the latter will participate in the club's active program this year. Max Hendrick, formerly of Varsity, but with the club last year, is ready for another active season. Raimond de Montigny was missing, but he should be out any day.

Manager Rivard wished it to be known that regular attendance at the practices was essential to all newcomers if any marked progress is to be made. Others wishing to turn out are extended a cordial invitation by the club.

SPORTS NOTICES

Sports Notices must be in by 8.30 p.m. the night previous to publication and must be dated and signed.

Tacklers Going Well
Yesterday afternoon "Shag" lined up his squad against "Dunc" Anderson's freshman twelve and gave them an opportunity to practice their defensive play against the youngsters. Prior to the scrimmage drill Herbie Westman booted the piskin to the frosh backfielders who attempted to get away from the wingmen who were receiving special attention in their tackling efforts. The downfield brigade is right on edge and Wing and Davis will have plenty of difficulty cluding them on Saturday. There is plenty of outside wing material available and just who will get the call for Saturday's game is not yet certain. Al Krukowski and George Degnan will no doubt start, as their work in recent games has left nothing to be desired, but there is still a problem.

The kick and pass attack is still being adhered to with a few line plays as an added threat. Slip Gilbert will do most of the plunging with Johnny Riddell backing him up. "Gil" is playing great football this year and is one of the best secondary defence men in intercollegiate circles, in addition to being a hard hitting plunger. Degnan and Westman will do the passing. Degnan is rapidly making a name for himself in the college loop with his passing and he astounded the fans in London with a toss to Frankie Shaughnessy Jr. that travelled approximately forty yards.

Young "Shag" A Problem
Incidentally, the same Frank Shaughnessy is causing his Dad considerable worry. Just where to play young "Shag" is a problem that will probably go unanswered until game time. His scoring punch precludes any possibility of his being used at snap but he can fill in with equal ability at almost any position.

Westman, Byrne and Gilbert will be in the backfield. Westman's booting gave the Tricolour plenty of trouble in Kingston and his work in practice sessions this week has been right up to the mark so that Wing and Davis, Queen's kicking stars will have their work cut out for them if they are to keep up with the tow-headed McGill sophomore.

Letourneau Recovered
Charlie Letourneau and George Horning, fighting middle wings who have both made valuable contributions in the way of blocked kicks that have resulted in scores will hold down their accustomed positions. Letourneau's bad knee is almost as good as new.

Interest in the week-end tilt is gaining ground rapidly and McGill supporters are eagerly awaiting the opening whistle. The fighting spirit that has raised the Redmen from a squad that looked licked before it started to be a title contender is beginning to make itself felt on the campus and a banner crowd of student supporters is expected to cheer the big Red team in its attempt to get on even terms with Ted Reeves' team and avoid elimination from the race.

Rugby team is asked to be on hand tonight at 5 o'clock. Tonight's practice is very important and the following are especially asked to show up: Black, Fleming, Gorman, Deakin, Conklin, Bishop, Law, Edson, Mowatt, McGreigor, Carswell, Hebert, MacDougall, Savage, McDowell, Lowles, Burrill, Garol, Taylor. Any other members of the squad who have not been turning out should also attend.

FRESHMAN FOOTBALL
Coach Anderson wants all freshmen out today at 5 p.m. sharp. Only one week remains until the final game and every member of the team must come out for the practice. Morrison and Gardiner are especially asked to be on hand.

HARRIER TRIALS
Harrier Trials will be held on Saturday, November 4th, at 11.30 a.m. starting from the Stadium. All harriers must turn out for the trials at the intercollegiate meet will be held in Montreal on Saturday, November 11th. It is possible that the Diphlo road race will be held November 18th and

Basketball Practice Featured By Large Turnout Of Players

Pre-Sessional Tournament Matches Mooted For City League
NEWCOMERS IMPRESS

THE Montreal High School gymnasium is a beehive of activity these autumn days as Coach Van Wagner lines up his men for basketball practice in the first series of pre-season court flurries which will finally settle down in a couple of weeks to more intensive campaigning. Forty odd men were out yesterday afternoon, all of whom were given an opportunity to display their knowledge of the rudiments of basketball, since Coach Van Wagner confines his activities to ball-handling and a verbal survey of general court tactics to his eager charges. Any men who have not yet put in an appearance and who intend to do so should come out immediately, for the squad will in all probability be cut considerably within a couple of weeks, after which newcomers will be at a distinct disadvantage.

More prominent among yesterday's aspirants were George Faulkner, stellar member of last season's senior squad, Condit, Ross, Wilson and Dixon all of last year's City League team, and Eddie Silverman, former McGill intercollegiate star. Among the men not generally known at McGill are Huff and Boyd, the former a member of past Amherst University aggregations and the latter a player who was with University of Michigan Freshmen last season. With Don Young, Reed Lewin and Don Small scheduled to put in an appearance shortly, indications are that as strong a squad as previous Red intercollegiate titleholders will again be mustered this year.

Intermediate Or Senior?
Despite the plethora of material on hand, however, Coach Van Wagner is still undecided as to whether he will enter his second-stringers in the intermediate league group, or whether, as in the past few years, a senior city league entry will carry the Red colors. The McGill mentor will not decide definitely on a course of action, until further practice sessions have enabled him to size up the ability of his candidates.

With discussions prevalent to the effect that the annual city league tournament will be held during the month of December, acting as pre-season conditioning series, the McGill squad should have a good opportunity to gauge its capabilities with regard to other city league entrants. In previous years this tournament was a spring feature, at which time many teams found it too difficult to participate due to conflicting play-off tilts. This state of affairs should be ironed out to the satisfaction of all concerned, with the inception of the early tournament matches.

Exhibitions Next Month
Further warming-up matches for the Redmen will be provided through exhibition affairs with local teams, the first of these being contested early in December.

Dental Class Elections
Class elections of the Junior and Senior dental students resulted in the following officers being appointed:

Dentistry '34
President—Irving Coppnick.
Vice-President—Nathan Galkin.
Secretary-Treasurer—Miss Dora Gordon.

Dentistry '35
President—Thaddeus Szygiel.
Secretary-Treasurer—Harold Haber.

either two or three teams will be entered.

Red Soccer Team Beats All Star XI

Take Opponents Into Camp By 5-1 Score
BRUCE JONES NETS THREE SMART GOALS

A STARRY forward line backed by a sound defence spelled victory for the McGill soccer team in its annual match with the Junior All Stars, pick of the local junior teams, by the one-sided count of 5-1. This is the first victory in five years that the McGillmen rang up against the All-Star eleven. Sound soccer tactics were the order of the day on both sides, but the stars could not cope with the brand of football handed out by the Red forwards.

Play opened at a speedy pace which was well maintained for the major part of the first half. McGill's sallies were ineffective until a brilliant passing bee resulted in Bruce Jones' getting the ball right in front of the Stars' goal. Jones' skill made it impossible for the opposing goal tend so much as to touch it, ringing up the first of this three counters. This was after ten minutes of fast play.

Innis Plays Well
Innis, not to be outshone, repeated the trick about two minutes after the initial counter was scored. His shot whizzed past goalie Fishman who stabbed at the ether to no effect. Repeated threats from the All-Stars found the McGill defence right in there all the time and little accurate shooting was tried on goalie Ross, although the shots that did come were turned away skillfully.

Jones scored the second of his hat trick shortly before half time. His effort came about as a result of a beautiful forward combination. The ball was handed to him and he booted sure and swift to beat Fishman completely. Half time score stood at 3-0.

Johnny Nolan came in for a share of the glory when he kicked one against the twine about twenty minutes after play started in the second half. Jones completed his hat trick about fifteen minutes before full time whistle was tooted, making the count 5-0.

The sole score of the All-Stars came on a determined rush about half a minute before full time was blown. Turley booted a sizzler past Goalee Ross to prevent a whitewash.

Forward Line Clicks
The forward line was in near perfect shape and a stout defence stopped much of what came their way. Bruce Jones' play was outstanding, particularly as he played with a knee that was not in perfect shape. Nolan was his usual good self. Carter was good, and Garber played well in the right half position.

The soccer season is officially closed, the team awaiting the results of the R.M.C.—Varsity contest, this week-end to determine the 1933 champion. Springfield may be up to play an exhibition tilt within the fortnight.

McGill To Send 10 Delegates To Xmas Conference

Purposes Outlined
The specific purposes of the conference are outlined as follows: "To provide an opportunity for acquaintance and friendship between the students of the two countries; to understand more sympathetically the problems which students in each nation are facing; to realize our common fellowship in the World's Student Christian Federation; and to face together the contemporary challenge of the present world situation to those who are disciples of Jesus Christ." Attention will be centred upon personal Christian discipleship in particular reference to the three problems of Race, Unemployment, and Nationalism. These problems are to be approached and dealt with not in a merely political or academic way, but rather to make clear and challenging the relevance thereto of the Christian faith and the work of the Student Christian Movements.

Leaders Named
Dr. W. A. Visser 't Hooft of Geneva, and Dorothy Fosdick of Smith College will lead the commission on "Nationalism," and John McConnell of Yale University, and Raymond Currier of the Student Volunteer Movement that on "Race." In McGill a group will work together under the leadership of Harold Gibbard, graduate student in the Department of Sociology, on these two questions with special reference to China.

The program will include addresses, discussions, (both in commissions and in plenary sessions), and services of common prayer and worship. A daily address on "The Significance of Jesus" will be given by Professor Gregory Vlastos of the Department in Philosophy, Queen's University.

Each delegate will be asked to consider himself as representative of the Student Christian Movement of the country assigned to his college. The following countries will be studied thus: Austria, Canada, China, France, Great Britain, Germany, Holland, India, Japan, Mexico, Sweden, South Africa and U.S.A.

African Racial Problem Of Immediate Importance

reality, South Africa is a part of Europe, but it is separated from the latter continent. The paradox is this: while the European boasts of his superiority over the Negro, he is always afraid that the Negro may sometime become efficient, and overthrow the European control. Hence the present antagonism of the younger element.

The African is barred from higher education, but pays for it. He is barred from skilled competition. Yet he outnumbers the European seven to one. He believes that he is of the land, and is meant to stay there. He will never be ejected. He is adaptable to the conditions under which he is called upon to live. Religion and education become insignificant in the face of such a problem.

Emphasized Spiritual Side
Is there an answer to all these conflicting states. "No!" says the world. There is no new force to be applied. When man attempts to answer this question, he will do so in the terms of the past. But the bringing of the whole question to a spiritual basis, and a change in the type of leadership might prove of some assistance. Mr. Yergan is the secretary of the International Committee of Y.M.C.A. for South Africa. He is a prominent worker in youth movements, and has travelled and spoken all over the world.

Arts Men Prepare Varied Programme For Annual Antics

leading by John Kerr.

The Arts Undergrad Society is offering a prize to the composer of the best yell for the Faculty of Arts. The yell competition is open to all and yells may be handed in through the medium of Bill Gentleman.

There is to be a business meeting at the beginning of the evening. It is understood that there are several important questions to be discussed among which that of the Arts Undergraduate Journal is outstanding.

While most of the class skills are well under way it is pointed out that there are still vacancies left for those desirous of taking part. The executive of the classes concerned will be glad to receive assistance in this matter, particularly Arts '34 from which the cry for a bride and bridesmaid goes up. The class of Arts '36 are still searching for a wife for their drama. Doughnuts and coffee will be served.

consisted in a lot of voting. The lowest citizens of the United States have their say in the election of judges, banking law referendums, executives. This reduces democracy into a comic opera. They have taken a tool of the 18th century which was workable then and have worked it into modern conditions. The result of this has been that men like Al Capone and organized crime can challenge America and get away with it.

If we cannot manage good government today we cannot manage good society or good business, continued Sir Norman. British political tradition has not shown itself incapacitated to deal with these new ideas. Changes in Britain have not however been sudden, but the process is gradual and little importance it attached to them. In Germany the one sole idea and demand for arms equality has overshadowed any other economic issue there. He then dealt briefly with post-war conditions in Germany.

Liberty Of Discussion
This crude idealism and theory does not appeal to the Englishman, nor can he thoroughly understand them. The real secret of success of the English is the liberty of discussion which is the one basic political principle. This principle is however being abandoned by the rest of the world at present. Just as soon as we have shaken off authoritative and dictated rule in religion we have accepted it in politics. The world has gone astray from lack of knowledge of some simple economic facts which if applied would have saved it. It is only by proper education that our problems can be met with.

War Debts
Sir Norman quoted the War Debts and Reparations questions as perfect examples of popular lack of knowledge. Britain in its earlier years and the United States today are clamouring for payment in "money" little realizing that such a transaction is impossible and even if it were, it would do the recipient countries no good. If the simple economic truth underlying the transfer problem of the War Debts was understood ten years ago, many of the present evils would be avoided. Moreover we should strive at preventing economic evils rather than striving to cure them, which is an infinitely more difficult problem, he stated. Only through proper education of the masses of these simple facts can democracy and the welfare of the world be saved.

THERE will be a practice of the Band tonight at 5 p.m. in the Union Ballroom for final touching-up and practice formation. Queen's are expecting to have their Band with them for the game and every member is urged to attend as a full turnout is wanted for tomorrow. The Band will meet at the Union at 1:30 sharp tomorrow, to lead the monster parade of rooters to the Stadium. There was a good rehearsal yesterday and the Band expects to give a fine performance.

Arts Undergrads Convene Tonight In Annual Antics

Skits, Refreshments, Songs Included In Program

SKITS that include bridesmaids, wives and brides, songs, cheers, and refreshments will all form part of the "Antics" of the Arts Undergraduate Society, which will take place in the Union Ballroom tonight at eight o'clock. This is the first of the year's activities for this Faculty and all Arts men are cordially invited to take part in the fun.

Each class is presenting a skit, all of which are now ready for production. The casts were completed yesterday owing to the gallant response to the call for wives, brides, and bridesmaids, that was published in yesterday's Daily. In addition to the entertainments by the various classes, there will be a business meeting at the beginning of the evening. There are several important subjects to be discussed including the publishing of an Arts Undergraduate Journal.

The competition for an Arts Faculty yell closed yesterday. During the evening the winner will be announced, and awarded a prize for his efforts. Cheer-leader Sprinkle will be on hand to lead the cheering.

George Falle will add to the entertainment with piano selections, while John Kerr will be present to lead the singing. Dean MacKay and Dean Johnson have signified their intention to attend, and it is expected that they will address the gathering. Word has not yet been received as to whether or not Sir Arthur will be present.

Free smokes will be given through the courtesy of the W. C. Macdonald Tobacco Company. Free eats, consisting of coffee and doughnuts, will be served at the end of the evening.

Old trousers and no ties will be the conventional garb for those attending.

Decision Of Council Awaited By Society

Choral Society Is To Present "Mikado" If Budget Is Passed

At a meeting of the Choral Society last night it was announced that the fate of "The Mikado," this year's production of the society depends on the approval of the proposed budget by the Students' Council. Should the budget be passed the opera will take place some time in February. Mr. and Mrs. Norris will be in charge of the chorus and principals respectively.

The president, Mr. Minton, stressed the fact that if the budget is approved and the "Mikado" is to be produced strict economies will have to be made in all departments. He expressed the hope that all the members would do their utmost to cooperate in making the society's effort a success.

Many departments are open to students interested in work other than actual singing. Among these are stage managing, property, lighting, ticket managing etc. Each of these activities is both interesting and instructive as it lends opportunities of learning the work from the ground up.

Election for men's representative was held and L. Place was chosen for the post. All members were asked to watch daily announcements for the next meeting.

Cackle Club

The second unofficial, and the first annual meeting of the Royal Order of the Cackle Club will be held tomorrow evening in the fourth floor, back sitting-room of R.V.C. at 8:37. Members are urged to attend. All those

$728.08 Now Collected With Commerce Taking Lead

WITH collections yesterday amounting to $357.35, or almost as much as for the first three days of the campaign combined, the McGill students' section of the Federated Charities is now further on the way to success having contributed $728.08 or 36.4% of its objective to date. Collecting $35.25 yesterday Frank Campbell and his Commerce representatives now take the lead having already taken in 89.6% of their objective and requiring only $12.94 to reach their quota of $125.

Law Second

Law continues in second place having now contributed 73.7% of their objective. The R.V.C. retained their distinction of having contributed the greatest aggregate amount to date by contributing $80.70 yesterday, to give them a grand total of $4185.45 and fourth place with a percentage of 52.9. The Graduate Nurses retain third place with a percentage of 64 while the Library School jumped into first place by collecting 44% of their objective yesterday alone. Thus the once leading Architects again dropped back this time to sixth place.

Returns Double Last Year's

Yesterday's results place returns to date at approximately double those of last year but the percentage collected to date still compares unfavourably with the percentage collections on the drive as a whole. Unofficial returns in the total campaign reveal that $329,028. of the $743,000 objective has been received which is a percentage of 44.3 as against the McGill students' percentage of 36.4. As Wednesday's standing, however, showed McGill students as having only half the percentage of the total drive a very decided move in the right direction is evident.

Greatly increased contributions by Arts, Medicine, Engineering, the Library School and the R.V.C. were prominent features of yesterday's success. Arts contributed the largest amount of the day with $82.35 but owing to a very poor start have still subscribed only 24.4% of their objective. Medicine contributed more yesterday than in the first three days combined but nevertheless have a smaller total than last year while Theology is now the only section to retain the doubtful distinction of not having reported.

$171.92 Still Outstanding

In spite of yesterday's outstanding contributions there still remains over $1,200 to be collected, which necessarily will require the continued support by the leading faculties and greatly increased effort by Theology, Dentistry, M.S.P.E. the Graduate School, Arts, and Medicine. The encouraging part is that all of these latter now seem to have started in earnest so just watch the thermometer in the Union rise.

Graduate Students Will Meet Tonight

Folk Dance Society To Provide Entertainment

An entertainment for the members of the Graduate Students' Society will be given at Strathcona Hall tonight at 8 p.m. by certain members of the English Folk Dance Society. The object is to introduce to the students a form of recreation which has been enjoyed for a number of years by members of the staff and by younger graduates of the University.

Dancing of this type has been in vogue for years at the English and American Universities alike, and has only recently been taken up in Montreal. It is something which men in particular will enjoy, especially the vigorous Kentucky Running Set, or the Sword and Morris Dances. Every variety of country dance will be exhibited by the Group. Several dances will be free-for-all, where everybody can join in and enjoy themselves.

At this meeting notice will be given of the beginning group which is started at the Conservatory of Music, under the auspices of the Department of Extra-Mural Relations. Membership in this beginning class will not be limited but open to undergraduates and graduates of the University. The invitation to attend the entertainment tomorrow is therefore extended to include those who are interested, and are affiliated in any way with the University.

McGill Students Outnumbered Only By U. of Toronto

AMONG the universities of Canada McGill ranks second, behind only the University of Toronto in registration of students of full university grade. Figures which are often based as to the registration of students at Canadian universities are misleading due to the fact that there is no uniform system of counting the number registered.

Thus the Quebec figures include students in correspondence and extension courses. The University of Montreal includes those enrolled in the Junior College, and the University of Montreal and Laval figures include students in the various seminars and classical colleges of the Province of Quebec. When these figures are taken and compared with McGill's figures of bona fide full-time students we appear to rank low in the list.

The actual figures for full time students show, however, University of Toronto, including Arts students of Victoria, Trinity St. Michael's and School of Pharmacy 5124; McGill University, including Macdonald College, but excluding the affiliated theological colleges, 4783; Manitoba University, including the affiliated colleges, 1393; Queen's University, 1790; University of Montreal, 1012; and Laval University, Quebec, 554. Thus McGill is second in Canada.

Conception Of God Seen As Debatable

Arthur Minton Delivers Paper Before Philosophical Society

DISCUSSION FOLLOWS

Consensus Of Opinion Is That There Is No Proof Either Way

The argument "Is there a philosophical justification for belief in God?" is of such a nature that it does not permit of the existence of God being irrefutably proved. Such was the opinion of ARTHUR MINTON, who introduced the topic of discussion for the Philosophical Society last night in Strathcona Hall.

There have been drawn up five outstanding arguments for such an existence. Primarily, our belief in the essence of a perfect being implies existence. Then the general belief of humanity in a supreme individual, as evidenced by the numerous cults and creeds, supports such an argument. The philosophical aspect that the conception of a first cause necessitates the existence of a first cause is also brought in here.

The theological and moral arguments complete the group, the latter being perhaps the most powerful of all. It arises from the internal and unconditional command inherent in humanity, known as conscience, which distinguishes between right and wrong.

As an explanation of the feeling of remorse one experiences after having done wrong, the conception of an inner voice is rational. In spite of the opinion that we are bound by natural laws and that our moral feelings have arisen from non-moral practices, we are free individuals as evidenced by our different codes of morality.

The three possibilities for satisfying these arguments are to be found in pantheism, pluralism or theism. With the former, which conceives of a superior intelligence diffused throughout nature, good and bad come, irrelevant. Pluralism denies the laws of mechanism, orderliness and harmony. Theism, such as Christianity admits of freedom and personality among humanity and of a God, transcendent and imminent.

As customary, the meeting was then thrown open for discussion.

Newman Club Will Hear Dr. McNally

DR. J. W. McNALLY, prominent Montreal physician, member of the Medical Faculty of McGill University, and of the teaching staff of the department of Ophthalmology, will speak to the Newman Club at its second meeting. The subject of his address will be "Co-operation." This address will be delivered at the Congress Hall, Dorchester and Alexander Sts., on Sunday, November 5th.

The monthly Mass and buffet breakfast will precede Dr. McNally's address. An announcement will be made regarding the Informal Dance to be held November 22nd.

All Catholic students at McGill are invited to attend this monthly meeting held at 9:45 a.m.

English Educational System Outlined By Dr. Hamilton Fyfe

Queen's President Guest Of National Council Of Education

SCHOOL IS LEISURE

Present Day Public Schools Closely Connected With Old Universities

The British system of education has always worked upon principles that are selective rather than inclusive. In Canada, the ideals of democracy have carried us perhaps too far from principles to the detriment of higher education. Such was the statement made by Dr. Hamilton Fyfe, Principal of Queen's University, and guest of the National Council of Education, in the course of an illustrated address to a capacity audience at the Montreal Auditorium last night. The speaker, who was introduced by the Chairman, Professor W. D. Woodhead of McGill University, took as his thesis "The Universities and the Public Schools of Britain."

School Means Leisure

The word "school," the speaker said, means leisure. School boys, of that, detect an acid irony. But it is true that the British educational system has been based on an aristocratic ideal of culture through leisure. The oldest Public School is Winchester, founded by the bishop-statesman-millionaire William of Wykeham, in 1382. His College was founded with education as its primary purpose, and the singing of masses a secondary consideration. As with the case of present-day Public Schools, it had a close association with the old Universities. One feature is the perfect system of enforcing discipline.

Definition, Queer

The definition of a Public School in the queer sense in which the word is used in England is "A school whose headmaster is a member of the headmasters' Conference." This is an imperial body and includes the headmasters of more than 600 Canadian schools. Among the qualifications for membership are that the school should not be conducted for profit and that it should have an independent governing body of its own.

There have been many criticisms levelled against the English Public Schools. For instance, they are accused of fostering unduly the cult of athletics. The Prefect system has been attacked.

Universities Discussed

Dr. Fyfe then passed over to the Universities of Great Britain, which number at the present time sixteen. He averred that the only striking points of difference between Oxford and Cambridge are that the women students of Oxford are full members of the University, while at Cambridge they are not admitted to degrees; and that more attention is paid at Cambridge to natural science. Principal Fyfe described what he considered to be a fair system of examination at the Universities. There are, it is interesting to learn, no "tups" in the Oxford Honors course.

R.V.C. Music Club Held First Meeting

Varied Musical Program Presented To Large Group Of Students

The R.V.C. Music Club held its first meeting yesterday in the R.V.C. common room at 4:00. President Alice Miller called the meeting to order; and the secretary, Susan Kohl, read the minutes of the last meeting. The election of Phyllis Davies to the Music Club as First Year representative was ratified. Mrs. Vaughan then said a few words of welcome to the newcomers.

A delightful musical program was then presented to the large group of students present. Mr. Colin McMichael, baritone, who sang over the radio last winter on Sunday evening sang two songs—"Trade Winds" by John Massfield and Fred Keel, and "When Song Is Sweet" by Gertrude Sans Souci. He was accompanied by Miss Mabel Hutchins. Miss Alice Goodwin rendered two pianoforte solos—Gavotte by Bach, and Dance of the Gnome, by Letz. Following this Professor J. H. A. Düböis, cellist played Andante by Hugo Becker and Andante by Francis Tilmé. He was accompanied at the piano by Mrs. DuBols. Tea was served bringing the meeting to a close.

Students are asked to remember the joint meeting of the Societe Francaise, the Delta Sigma Society, and the R.V.C. Music Club which will take place on November 16, in the R.V.C. executive assures them that there will be an enjoyable program.

Student Rooters To Stage Elaborate Parade Saturday

WHAT promises to be the most colourful, elaborate and spectacular rooter's parade ever presented will be staged this Saturday prior to the McGill-Queen's game. Students are expected to turn out in large numbers seeing that this is the last home game of the season. Upon the result of this game hinge McGill chances of placing in the Intercollegiate League, a fact which will make this game far more interesting.

The McGill Band has an entirely new surprise up its sleeve. For days they have been rehearsing a skit which will be presented at the half-time interval. Information given is that it is the most original ever presented.

Goethe Selections Given Last Night By Max Montor

Used Remarkable Voice In Imitation And Eloquent Gesture

A large and appreciative audience was held spell-bound last night by Max Montor's powers of dramatic interpretation in the recital of selections from Goethe's "Egmont" at Moyses Hall. Portraying the varied characters that appear in that drama depicting the Netherlands' fight for freedom from the tyrannical rule of Philip the Second, Mr. Montor reproduced with utmost accuracy, by means of remarkable voice imitation and eloquent gesture, the emotional and dramatic tenor of the play.

From the few selections that were read, one could clearly see the successive steps with which the unsuspecting and almost naive Egmont sealed his own doom. The warnings of the Duke of Orange had no effect upon him—he did not suspect the evil intentions of the Duke of Alba.

The character of Kläuschen was admirably done. Mr. Montor was able to convey, with the utmost success, the simplicity and naivety of this humble maiden. Her adoration and idolization of Egmont led her even to the extreme of risking her very life to try to rouse the citizenry to aid her beloved when he was imprisoned. But Egmont, by his failure to appreciate the true significance of a serious situation, had lost the confidence of the people.

The scene between Egmont and Alba was done with remarkable sense of the contrast between these two characters. It was amazing to see one man changing at an instant, first to the severe, relentless, and subtle Alba to the frank, open and trusting Egmont, who thought that he could serve the King of Spain and his own people at the same time.

The last scene, in which Egmont, about to go to his death, expressed the hope that his people, by his death, would rise and free themselves from the Hapsburg tyranny, was a masterpiece. Mr. Montor also rendered several of Goethe's beautiful lyrics, "Prometheus," in which that Greek hero defies the Gods, was highly impressive, as was his rendering of "Der Erlkönig" and "Mahomet's Gesang."

Workshop Presents New One-Act Plays

Admission To The Production Will Be Absolutely Free

In four days the first production of the Players' Club Workshop department will be presented in the Central Y.M.C.A. The first curtain will go up at 8:00 and all admission will be absolutely free. In the three plays which will be seen the audience should get their fill of laughter and tears.

It should not be forgotten however, that the Workshop is a purely experimental organization in which the audience plays as vital a part as the actors themselves. The members of the Workshop do not set themselves up as models of perfection, they are striving to reach that stage.

All intelligent criticism as to any part of the production of these plays will be entirely welcome. Such criticism should be addressed to H. H. Stikeman, 9 Redpath Row, or published in the Daily. It is only through this form of criticism that the Workshop, and indeed amateurs in general, can arrive at any satisfactory results.

Dr. A. L. Walsh Addressed Dental Undergraduate Society Last Night

BROADENS OUTLOOK Committees For Banquet And Dance Appointed At Meeting

The McGill Dental Undergraduate Society last night resumed its yearly activities when the undergraduate members were addressed by Dr. A. L. Walsh, Acting Dean of the Faculty of Dentistry; Dr. Asselin, Provincial Assessor; and Dr. Gerald Sparks.

Dr. Walsh, in an informal talk, reminded his audience that their calling, that of relieving pain, was a noble one, and that dentistry, today, was a highly skilled art profession. He compared modern dentistry with that of a century or more ago. At the same time, he called to the attention of the society members the fact that McGill is the only university on the continent which gives hospital training to its dental undergraduates.

Must Broaden Outlook In concluding his remarks, Dr. Walsh stressed the point that it is essential that students do not confine themselves wholly to their dental studies but broaden their outlook and usefulness by taking part in campus activities and in general "learning correct living."

Dr. Asselin, assessor of the practical work in the final examinations, gave the students advice on the carrying out of their curriculum to their own mutual advantage. Dr. Sparks gave a brief outline of undergraduate conditions at the university as he saw them from the point of view of a graduate.

The business end of the meeting dealt with the election of committees to convene the annual banquet to be held in a few weeks and the year-end dance, which takes place towards the end of February. H. Harris was elected chairman of the banquet committee and Russ Ward, chairman of the dance committee.

Representatives on the banquet committee are: 1st year, Griffith; 2nd year, Mahoney; 3rd year, Shurman; 4th year, Harris; and of the dance committee: 1st year, Small and Bourne; 2nd year, Guilford and Clift; 3rd year, Glinick and Chamard; 4th year, Harris and Reisman.

The meeting was presided over by Ralph Rondeau, and Secretary-Treasurer Ivan Guilford.

Outburst Of Energy Called Nova Cause

Collision Theory Does Not Explain Observed Facts

"A sudden outburst of immeasurable energy; a cataclysm on a scale unparalleled in nature—this is a nova—the breaking up of a tremendous star and the hurling out of its layers with terrific speed far into space." This description was given by Dr. A. V. Douglas, Lecturer in Astrophysics, in a speech to the Montreal branch of the Astronomical Society of Canada last night.

The cause of this release of energy is unknown. Many theories have been advanced, including that of collision with another star, but none of these have made even an approximation to explaining the observed facts. The balance of a star depends on three forces—gravitation, gas and radiation pressure. It is evident that one of these three forces changes, but whichever one it is, is unknown. Novae are of particular importance at present, for it was only last year that the latest (RS Ophiuchi) burst into life, reached its peak, and declined. This is the second time this particular star has become a nova, for in 1898 the same thing happened. For thirty-six years between it remained almost quiescent, behaving as a variable star.

Players' Club Speech

The Players' Club has been fortunate in obtaining Dr. Leon Edel for today's Studio Lecture. Dr. Edel, who is dramatic critic for the Montreal Herald, will speak on "The Movies Compared with the Drama." This lecture should prove to be highly interesting. Any students who might be interested are invited to be on hand at 5 p.m. in the Grill Room of the Union.

Next week the Studio Lecture will be on Thursday instead of Friday. The speaker Mr. D. M. Legate of the Montreal Daily Star has chosen for his subject "Art for Heaven's Sake."

Secondary Occupations

OFTEN a speaker or lecturer will address himself to one individual or to a small group, but his counsel will be universally applicable. Never has this been more true than last night, when Dr. A. L. Walsh, Acting Dean of the McGill Dental faculty, addressed the newcomers and upper year students.

Dr. Walsh did not limit himself to any one topic. Speaking informally he covered many subjects which concerned Dental students, and though he meant them to refer to these men, we feel that they are applicable to every student in the University.

"Do not get into a rut," advised the speaker, and what better advice can be given to students in a University. Men and women come with the intention of imbibing knowledge. This is their primary aim, but, the speaker claimed, and we heartily endorse his views, students should have secondary occupations. Merely confining oneself to the subject one is studying, be it Medicine, Dentistry, or Engineering is not enough. Such an action means that this student while he or she is learning a certain topic, does not derive the full benefits of education in the real sense of the word.

Getting into a rut is synonymous with stagnation, and stagnation, we maintain, leads to degeneration. The speaker, who has had wide experience not only in his own profession but also in the sphere of educational guidance hit the proverbial nail squarely on the head when he advised his students to indulge in as many activities as possible. He obviously realized that this would mean taking time off from studies, but this did not deter him from urging them to find some variety in their course of study.

Students who enter the university for the first time, and this refers particularly to freshmen, are prone to do one of two things—either indulge in too many activities, or in none at all. We feel that there is always the happy medium, and we repeat the speaker's advice to find the activities the student is fitted for and to stick to them.

Dr. Walsh advised his students to read and to write. This applies not only to Dental students but to the general student body. No matter what course one is taking, reading and writing are the two media whereby one broadens one's knowledge and result in acquiring the experience necessary when one has left the university.

Speaking generally to the student body we urge them to find the Club or Society or activity for which they are best fitted, and we further urge to continue with whatever the organization may be, for it is by this means that they will acquire not only friendships and experience, but also the education which their text-book does not teach them.

A Plea For Moderation

TOMORROW will be played on the Molsor Stadium one of the most important football games of the year as far as McGill is concerned. It is an occasion upon which our standing in the world of inter-collegiate football is vitally at stake. Without making any prognostications upon the possibilities that lie before the team, for which we wish all success, we would beg to point out certain things to the student body.

In the past it has been known as the custom following important athletic events to parade throughout the streets of the city, generally disorganizing traffic, and often forcefully invading business houses and places of entertainment. Though we do not maintain that demonstrations carried out in a civilized manner are outside the pale, we do think that such members of the student body, if, when, and as they hold a parade, should comport themselves with some signs of moderation and consideration for other people.

THE THEATRE

Dramatic Critics As Authors

An experiment that has proved of interest to all the dramatic-minded was the successful introduction this week of a Critic's Night at the Montreal Repertory Theatre. In the organization's official organ, The Cue, the purpose of the innovation was announced: "Apart from the interest involved in such a reversal of the usual roles, the critics are expecting to glean something of value which will assist them in the difficult business of intelligently arbitrating the drama." This statement sums up the M.R.T.'s principal interest in the scheme: a rather left-handed way of arousing the two on the aisle from their comfortable orchestra chairs, and dumping them plump into the mass and tangle behind scenes. The critics took their part of the bargain seriously, and three offerings of more than passing entertainment were presented. A rapid-paced farce, a tense Grand-Guignolish melodrama, and a humorous 'propaganda' conversation piece, resulted; proving that great minds do not think alike, or that birds who flock together are not always of a feather.

The success of the scheme is another blow on the head to that die-hard superstition that a critic, in the first place, has no business to write a play, and in the second place, can not do it if he tries. The word play, in the sense thus used, is taken as something commercially popular and intrinsically meritorious. There is always the paradoxical Mr. Shaw to confound the theory; in fact he wrote an essay on that very subject, "The Case for the Critic-Dramatist" (Saturday Review, Nov. 16, 1895.) in which he announces "I have written half-a-dozen 'original' plays, four of which have never been performed, and I shall presently write half-a-dozen more." In Shaw's day unusual conditions prevailed. We are told that it was the customary thing for a critic's play to be bought by a prominent actor-manager who had hitherto been in bad critical graces, and to be calmly laid to moulder on a dusty shelf—Shaw's personal experience with Sir Henry Irving and "The Man of Destiny". But the pungency remains in his assertion: "The respect inspired by a good criticism is permanent, whilst the irritation it causes is temporary; on the other hand, the pleasure given by a venal criticism is temporary, and the contempt it inspires permanent. So no man really assures his advance as a dramatist by making himself despised as a critic." Putting Mr. Shaw as lightly as he will, let us aside, supporters of the quoted theory mention all the eminent gentlemen of the press whose efforts to attack the dramatic medium proved failures. They tell us, for instance, that William Archer, whose dramatic reviews were this model of their age, and whose book, "Playmaking" is still an invaluable guide to the craftsman, tried consciously and without success to write plays,—the idea for his one brilliantly popular work, "The Green Goddess" coming to him as a fantastic dream, which only on the persuasion of friends did he set to paper. We read, too, a collection of such hackneyed and conventionalized scenes, episodes and dialogue scraps as appear in George Jean Nathan's recent "Since Ibsen", that, by their very juxtaposition, are all the more ludicrous, and we wonder: if he were to write a play, successful commercially and literarily, could he avoid falling into the pit he has exposed for others? The canny Mr. Nathan has never tried!

It does not, of course, follow that a fish out of water will learn to crawl on land. Indeed from the fact that he is a critic, the subject of this discussion is expected to keep his aesthetic distance, and his critical perspective constantly adjusted in order to discourage association with the objects of his praise and blame. How, one may well ask, is the critic to learn the fundamentals of the art he deals with? And how is he to keep abreast with modern tendencies and improvements if he does not actively practice the art he pulls to pieces? How can his articles be anything but continually despised destructive criticism?

There seems no doubt that he who practises what he preaches even if he never attains a mastery of that art, will none the less more thoroughly appreciate the difficulties involved in it. In the case of the critic of drama, it is easily apparent that one who has actually ground out a play, scene by scene, movement by movement, speech by speech, or who has worked back-stage in the very midst of the countless economies, inconveniences and shortcomings that characterize the technical end of a production, will be brought into forcible realization of the miracles achieved.

In our day, St. John Ervine, the successful dramatist of "Jane Glegg" and "The First Mrs. Fraser", has desisted play-writing for criticism; and Robert E. Sherwood, the eminent American critic, has given up criticism to put into practice the ideas that have accreted with the years. The constant recurrence of these themes and ideas may confuse a Mr. Nathan and cause such a one to despair; but may have quite a contrary effect on a Mr. Sherwood. It is very easy to follow the latter's steady improvement in his work from the days of "The Road to Rome" through to the brilliant "Reunion in Vienna" and the new "Acropolis". Mr. Sherwood has been able to weed the chaff from the wheat, and is more confident of what makes real drama,—action, characterization, and dialogue,—through, we suggest, his very years of apprenticeship. And if Mr. Ervine were to return to the fold of practising playwrights, the resulting improvement in technique would obviously justify his years of observation. A Sherwood-Ervine would make an ideal combination, and it is sincerely hoped that when the clouds that hang over the present theatrical horizon have cleared away, that such examples will be frequent.

THE SHOWS NEXT WEEK

His Majesty's

For the third week of the local stock company engagement at His Majesty's theatre, the management is proud to announce that they have secured the services of the distinguished stage and screen star Madge Kennedy, who will act as guest star to the company for one week only commencing next Monday evening, and she will be seen in Noel Coward's greatest stage success "Private Lives."

When "Private Lives" was produced in New York a prominent critic wrote the following: "Noel Coward's gifts as a comedian have often been obscured by his tendency towards the tragic, but in his musical plays he has revealed a humorist, and a very happy knack of developing situations humorously at the very moment when they become serious."

In his delightful comedy of married life, entitled "Private Lives" he shows us two young couples, who have got mixed up, in each case having married the wrong person and then separated. Their honeymoons accidentally are being spent in the same hotel, with romantic associations and from the very outset they get all tangled up again. The quarrelling that goes on speedily operates as an eyecatcher, and each of them become disillusioned with the new mate with the result that there is a complete readjustment before the curtain closes, and wedded happiness comes ahead instead of the bickerings and explosions that followed the first effort at readjustment.

Princess

Patrons of the Princess theatre will be given the opportunity next Saturday to see one of the most outstanding programme that was ever shown at the popular St. Catherine Street playhouse. As their main feature the management will present "Broadway Thru a Keyhole," featuring Constance Cummings, Russ Columbo, Paul Kelly, Blossom Seeley, Gregory Ratoff and Texas Guinan in the leading roles, and as an added attraction "As The Devil Commands," with Alan Dineheart, Mae Clarke and Neil Hamilton in the principal parts.

Walter Winchell, Broadway columnist is author of "Broadway Thru a Keyhole." The picture has a background of night clubs and shows how a sweet and innocent young girl rose to fame, was befriended by a handsome young racketeer and finally became the wife of a famous radio crooner.

The story of "As The Devil Commands," which will be shown as the added attraction concerns an aged invalid, his attractive nurse, his ward, a young doctor, and the lawyer, all spending a few weeks in the latter's estate outside of New York. The lawyer loves the nurse, but she prefers the young doctor, so he has two objectives: first to kill off the old fellow and as his nearest kin, fall heir to his entire fortune, second, to get his rival out of the way by having him found guilty of the crime and electrocuted. Then, he calculates, the girl will marry him.

Palace

"The Life of H.R.H. The Prince of Wales," which was produced at the Gaumont-British Studios and reveals the fascinating and eventful story of the life of the heir to the British throne, is the main feature on the All-British double feature programme current at the Palace Theatre. The added attraction is "Orders is Orders," with Charlotte Greenwood, James Gleason and Cyril Maude.

"The Life of H.R.H. The Prince of Wales," is entertaining and informative and is sure to delight audiences for the Prince brings a unique and charming personality to the screen as leading man in the story of his own life.

He is every woman's romantic ideal. The story itself is the most fascinating the screen has yet given us, for it takes us step by step through the life of the most popular young man in history.

The second feature "Orders is Orders" also from the Gaumont-British Studios boasts a magnificent cast of American and English stars, and is a delightful mixture of American and British humour which causes wholesale laughter.

Capitol

If the popularity of a star can be judged by the attendance at the Theatre where this star's vehicle is playing, then Mae West certainly has a large following. For the past week Miss West's latest starring vehicle "I'm No Angel" has been drawing capacity crowds to the Capitol Theatre and so great has been the public demand for another week that Managing Director George Rotsky announces that, despite other bookings, "I'm No Angel" stays a second and final week.

The story which was written by Miss West herself tells the tale of a carnival dancer, alluring to the chumps who ogle her alluring to the playboy of society when she lands at the top of her profession in the big city. Up until the time she meets Cary Grant, she manages to hold tight reins on any of her admirers. But with the coming "Tall, dark and handsome" Cary Grant, however, the reins go loose.

Loew's

With the illustrious Dave Apollon and his "Surprises of 1933" on the stage of Loew's theatre starting Saturday, and on the screen Lionel Barrymore in "One Man's Journey", patrons of Loew's theatre will be given a stage and screen show that provides excellent entertainment.

Dave Apollon and his "Surprises of 1933" offer a Musical Revue that has been hailed "The American Chauve Souris" for it is an entirely new style of theatrical entertainment. It links an assortment of clever specialties together with a chain of high humour, providing sixty minutes of joy and speed. Mr. Apollon, who is a famous dancing comedian in addition to being a first rate musician has surrounded himself with an exceptionally clever cast.

On the screen Lionel Barrymore will be seen in "One Man's Journey" with Frances Dee, Dorothy Jordan and Joel McCrea. The story centres around a country doctor who refrains from withdrawing into specialized study because to do so would mean leaving unserved the rural people who have come to depend upon him. A double love theme is woven into the story.

Greta Stueckgold

Greta Stueckgold the famous young leading soprano of the Metropolitan Opera House, appears in recital in Montreal at the Imperial Theatre, on Sunday evening, November 5th, at nine o'clock.

Tall and blonde Greta Stueckgold is as lovely to look at as to listen to, and everywhere that she appears, whether in concert or on the operatic stage, whether in New York, London or Vienna, her glorious voice, great artistry and golden beauty—triumph. Madam Stueckgold's Montreal recital program will include delightful groups of French and English songs, as well as opera arias and other works of the beloved composers of other nations.

The big resonant voice, of wide range and great depth, the use made of this fine instrument, the possession of that priceless quality which radiates sensitive feeling and glows with emotion, all this, plus a great personal charm and exceptional beauty, have been the gifts bestowed by the gods on GRETE STUECKGOLD, whose recital in Montreal will be long and happily remembered by all those to whom music and artistry are loved and appreciated.

Cinema de Paris

The hero of one of the best of Dickens' romances finds himself, after many long years, again in the company of the woman he loved. A sad scene, for they have both changed greatly. He, after having led a respectable life, works by "le demon de midi" and has started on a new adventure . . . It is at this time that he meets his old love. Will he recognise her?

These perplexities are a few of those which you will see if you do not miss "Les Allées Briseses" at the Cinema de Paris.

Law Lions Emerge Victorious In Close Plumber Grid Tilt Fight To Finish Predicted For Tomorrow's All-Important Game

Puddington Stars For Lawyers To Score Team Total
FINAL COUNT 13-12

THE Lions of the Law Faculty swept through the most stubborn opposition which they have so far encountered this year to eke out a last-minute victory over the luckless Engineers, 13-12, on a spectacular kick to the deadline by Puddington, stellar Bar-rister half. Spurred on by the consistent pedal efforts of the afore-mentioned Puddington, the Lawyers just barely eluded Old Man Defeat, since the winning point was the last play of the game.

Puddington played a remarkable brand of football in the Law backfield, being responsible for every one of the thirteen markers which won the game. He booted four drop-kicks, and the final point as well, to chalk up one of the best performances of the season in inter-faculty competition.

Passes Effective
Mace and Christie were the individual stars for the Engineers, the former showing marked play-making ability in the Plumber backfield and the latter scoring a touchdown on a thirty-yard end run. Engineering had a slight edge on the general play, gaining first downs pretty consistently against the Lion line. Forward passes played a considerable part in the Legal victory, Chuck Wayland being particularly effective on the receiving end. The Plumbers completed two short passes.

In the first quarter, Puddington dropped three successive kicks over the opposing goal-post, to secure an early 9-0 advantage. Engineering came back with a rouse and Harris scored a Plumber touchdown on a blocked kick, which Davis converted. The first half ended 9-7, Law leading.

Christie Scores
Christie put the Plumbers ahead early in the third quarter with his touchdown, which was not converted. In the final quarter, Puddington came through with another field goal and a rouse, to clinch the game, 13-12.

The Line-up
Law — Corbett, Bradley, Robertson, Puddington, Mitchell, Porteous, Harrington, McMurty, Walker, Crabtree, Rubin, Gales, Kaufman.

Engineering — Dick, Christie, Mace, Harris, Bercuson, Brissenden, Miller, Parent, Smith, Payan, Davis, Hubbard, Tait, Palmer.

Win For McGill Will Ensure First Place Tie — Tricolor Aiming To Clinch Lead — Don Young Announced As Definite Starter — Richert, Riddell, May Not Play — Opposing Squads Will Await Outcome Of Varsity-Western Match With Great Interest

Shag Is Satisfied

ONLY the weather can now mar the setting for what promises to be the best inter-collegiate grid contest of the season. Two highly-tuned football teams, both fighting to improve their positions in the title race and with one facing elimination in the event of a loss, will face each other at Molson Stadium tomorrow afternoon when Frank Shaughnessy's Redmen meet Ted Reeves' Tricolor Queens' gridriders in their next-to-last scheduled game of the season.

Both Teams Surprise
The winner of tomorrow's game is conceded an excellent chance of the championship despite the fact that neither team was regarded as more than a mediocre aggregation three weeks ago. Queen's have risen to top place in the standing with a rush, having won three straight games following their defeat by Western in their opening match, while McGill has battled its way into a second place tie with Warren Stevens' highly rated Blue team by twice coming from behind to down Joe Breen's Mustangs. Queen's first win was achieved at the expense of the Red team in Kingston by a single point and the McGill gridriders are eager to show their supporters that they really were beaten by bad breaks in that game.

Two entirely different types of attack will be featured tomorrow. Coach Shaughnessy has been hard at work perfecting his aerial offense with Herbie Westman as the kingpin, ably backed up by his forward passing aces. "Shag" was highly pleased with the results of last night's workout, particularly with the passing phase. Passes were snapping with great precision to waiting receivers, much to the bewilderment of the freshmen who provided the opposition. Herbie Westman did not do any kicking, being content to take it easy in that respect but was whipping bullet-like passes to his receivers in the scrimmage drill.

Queen's Attack Powerful
On the other hand Ted Reeves has a hard hitting bunch of line plungers on whom he depends to carry the brunt of the attack. Abe Zvonkin and Bud Gorman have been ripping up front lines in great style of late and the Red linesmen will have plenty of work trying to hold them in check. The ex-Balmly Beacher can cut loose an effective passing attack as well as an added threat. Its effectiveness is adequately attested by the fact that Curly Krug started the Kingstons on their victorious march with a 38 yard toss to Glass that resulted in a touchdown against Varsity. Reeves' kickers are given plenty of credit for the success of the Limestone City squad to date.

Several changes in the Red line-up have been made and Al Krukowski will probably revert to his old position at quarter-back. Al has been calling signals all week along with Lou Olker and with Johnny Riddell an uncertain starter due to a knee injury, Krukowski and Olker look certain to get the call. Shifting Krukowski has created a position for young "Shag" at outside wing. Fred Wigle is ready for action following a long period on the injured list, and will be used along with Bud Drury to fill in on the line. The spirited play of Wallie Markham as understudy for "Slip" Gilbert, plunging half and secondary defence-man has earned him the call to alternate with McGill's hard-hitting ball totter.

A light signal drill tonight will conclude preparations for the contest and the stage will then be set for the big struggle.

McGill Captain

DON YOUNG, on the sidelines since the last game with Queens' will be at the helm once again tomorrow, ready to lead the Redmen against the Kingstonsians.

R. V. C. Net Doubles Finished Wednesday

RIVALLING the music of the pigskin on the gridiron was the swan-song of the R.V.C. tennis doubles, which was completed Wednesday afternoon to the satisfaction of all concerned. B. Brookfield and O. Cameron found little difficulty in decisively defeating K. Kirby and E. Montgomery by the score of 6-2, 6-1. This practically completes the tennis activities for the year, except that the Singles have not yet been finished. The girls who are left to play in the Singles tournament are asked to do so as soon as possible, as it is hoped to get the tennis all cleared up before the snow falls. The contestants left to play are R. Tait vs. M. Chisholm, and B. Brookfield vs. K. Kirby. If possible these girls are asked to finish within the next week, so that the tennis season will be successfully wound up this year.

Engineers Triumph In Close Soccer Tilt

ENGINEERING tied up the Inter-faculty Soccer League yesterday afternoon by a close win over the Arts-Commerce aggregation, 2-1. Gambel starred for the Plumbers, scoring both his team's markers, while Luxton counted the single Arts-Commerce point. Engineering is now tied with Theology for the league lead, and they will play off tomorrow afternoon at 1.00 p.m. in the Upper Stadium for the right to meet MacDonald at a later date.

Queen's Confident

KINGSTON, Ont., Nov. 2.—With the brilliant record of two successive victories over Varsity behind them, Queens' seniors leave at noon tomorrow for Montreal where at Molson Stadium on Saturday, they hope to take a firmer grip on first place in the C.I.R.F.U. standing.

Respect Redmen
The Tricolor is not underestimating the Red team and expects even tougher opposition than they received in the McGill game here. But Ted Reeves and his men are ready. There has been more pep and dash in the daily workouts and the weaknesses apparent in the Varsity series have been corrected. In scrimmage against the Intermediates this week, the squad has shown plenty of ground-gaining plays and on the defensive smothered the best efforts of the seconds to advance the ball.

Johnny Wing and Jim Davis will share the kicking burden on Saturday and both are capable hooters. Freeman Waugh has been brought up from the Intermediates and will fill a relief role at middlewing. Otherwise the line-up is the same as in the previous games this year and is as follows:—Flying wing, Hamlin; Halves, Krug, Wing, Ralph; Quarter, Macintosh; Snap, Kostuk; Insides, Weir, D. Waugh; Middles, Gorman, Zvonkin; Outsides, Glass, Earle; Alternatives, Davis, McNichol, Peever, Miller, Byrne, Dafce, Jones, Dargavel, F. Waugh.

Chess Club Makes Tournament Draw

At the end of the second round of the Chess Club ladder tournament, the leaders are Hull, Kitecs, Schwartz, and Sheldon, each with two wins. As the last three are newcomers, the "B" team should be considerably stronger this year. The following is the draw for the third round.

Kitecs vs. Hull, EL. 5594; Schwartz vs. Sheldon, LA. 0783; Turgeon vs. Percimuter, DO. 4870; Reuch vs. Cooper, AT. 3702; Bedoukian vs. Calder, DO. 0756; Lazarus vs. Fullerton, EL. 2187; Donald vs. Johnson, FI. 4154; Cook vs. Mason, MA. 8864; Cliff vs. Hulbig, DE. 3701; Bychowsky vs. Blumer, EL. 7245; Harbert vs. Horwood, MA. 2663; Fels vs. Hawes, MA. 4902; Lewis vs. Mendelsohn, CR. 4752; Leahey vs. Rivett, MA. 7638. Matches should be completed before Thursday, November 9, preferably tomorrow from 3-6 at the Union.

Partial results of the second round are as follows: Lazarus defeated Hulbig; Badoukian def. Cliff; Kitecs def. Fullerton; Sheldon def. Fels; Hull def. Donald; Shepherd def. Cooper; Kircher def. Reuch; Schwartz def. Cook.

Junior Water Polo Team Trims M.S.C. 8-3 For Initial Win

Bourne Leads Mates To Victory With Four Tallies

COMBINATIONS CLICK

McGILL'S junior water polo squad proved rather conclusively last night at the Columbus tank, with disastrous results to their opposition, the Montreal Swimming Club, that they are no set up in the city league play this season. Close checking, perfect combination on the passing, and shooting which left little to be desired, saw the Redmen enter the second half of the tilt leading by five goals to nil. An equally sterling brand of play repelled a determined rally on the part of the M.S.C. swimmers in the second period and the scoring was more evenly divided, with each team notching three counters. Final score stood at 8-3.

The Redmen were undoubtedly in top-notch form last night with every phase of their play clicking to near perfection. Within a few minutes of the opening whistle Percy sent a long shot clean into the corner of the M.S.C. net to open the scoring column, and start the Red team on a scoring spree which ended only with the conclusion of the period. Pete Bourne netted three of these counters in quick succession, while Smyth accounted for the Redmen's fifth marker. A combination play of Smyth to Silverstone to Bourne was working with good results in this period and paved the way for a couple of these goals.

The second frame saw the McGill team loosening up to some extent, and Hill of the Montreal Club netted the sphere on three occasions during this time.

Another tally by Bourne and a pair of markers speeded into the nets by Wilson, accounted for the remaining Red scoring. McLure, forward on the McGill line, was well up in the play throughout both frames and aided materially in forcing the Red attack, while Gilmour in the nets, averted scoring threats on several occasions, through smart play.

The Redmen are absent from league play for an entire week before they engage the M.A.A.A. Blues at the K. of C. Tank. The seniors, forced out of last night's tilt, due to illness of squad members, will likewise see action next Thursday against a Wheeler team.

ART SONGS

The following songs have been chosen to be sung at the "ARTS ANTICS" tonight:—

ARTS MARCHING SONG by MAX FORD

Tune: "Song of the Vagabonds"
Men of fame and knowledge.
Have you come to college.
To bow down to other men?
Men of brawn and muscle.
Do you fear a tussle.
With the lion in his den?
Push aside all other faculties.
We can do with them just what we please.
So men of Arts arouse you, show the stuff that's in you.
On then, on to victories.
Let's get going fellows.
No more whines or bellows.
We must shout our battle cry.
Others often wonder.
Why we shout like thunder.
They'll soon know the reason why.
All together shoulders to the wheel.
Make the other faculties to feel
That we're the closest near it, to that college spirit.
So Hurrah for Arts and Old McGill!

ARTS SONG

(page 50 in the Song Book)
Let others vaunt their Faculties and boast their better parts.
But we will sing, our tribute bring, to the Faculty of Arts.
And we consider we've a right to make a little noise
For we've got the finest faculty, no doubt about it Boys.

Chorus
M-C-G-I-L-L a thrill through each true spirit starts,
For what's the matter with Old McGill and the faculty of Arts?
For what's the matter with Old McGill and the faculty of Arts?
We have the source of greatness and we have the fount of pride
As we have the spring that bubbles from the mountain's rocky side
That gentle scholar knight who's worth a score of dukes and earls
We've poets and philosophers, and then—we have the girls.
We have no feud with Medicine, with Science, or with Law;
They've all of them the finest lot that college ever saw:
The boys of all the Faculties we greet them with good will
For we're fellows, and we're brothers and we're sons of Old McGill.

THE CHRISTMAS GRADUATE

Chorus
Wrap me up in my old sheet of foolscap, foolscap,
And say a poor duffer lies low, lies low,
And six vengeful profs all shall carry me, carry me,
With jubilant faces aglow.
